

Recycling and Materiality of Fabrics (TBC)

What if gentrification were a good opportunity?

Here we are at Communitism, an independent cultural centre in an Athens neighbourhood in the midst of a complete transformation.

Here, where everything is mixed, diverse and ready for new uses, we will try to think and experiment with new practices of reusing materials and spaces in a circular economy perspective.

We will try to imagine that the ongoing gentrification can be an opportunity to understand together how to transform places in a way that makes them more and more welcoming to all living beings, instead of more and more exclusive and exclusionary.

We'll be making our first visit at the beginning of February, so we'll be updating this card with our first ideas soon.

